

MS. ANNE TREBILCOCK

Former Legal Adviser

International Labour Organization

Anne Trebilcock is former Legal Adviser and Director of Legal Services, International Labor Organization (Geneva), where her career spanned almost 25 years, addressing issues of public international law, international labour standards, comparative labour law and fundamental principles and rights at work.

Since retiring from the ILO in 2008, she has served as Academic Advisor to the Centre de Droit international of the Université de Paris Ouest Nanterre La Défense. She is a member of the ad hoc Appeals Tribunal of the GAVI Alliance and of the Advisory Board, Labour Law and Development Research Network. She has served as a consultant to various organizations on questions such as internal governance, corporate social responsibility, the social dimension of regional integration, gender and labour, the use of plain legal language and measuring aspects of the rule of law.

Currently (2011) co-editing the Manuel de droit international social, Anne Trebilcock is the author of numerous journal articles and editor of several ILO publications. She has taught courses at McGill University in Montreal and at the Universities of Detroit, Gießen, Göttingen and San Diego, in addition to ad hoc lecturing at other universities and conferences.

Prior to joining the ILO, she was an assistant editor of the Encyclopaedia of Public International Law at the Max Planck Institute of Comparative Public Law and International Law, Heidelberg, and before that was a lawyer for the International Union, United Auto Workers Union. She also worked in Peru for two years as a journalist, translator and English teacher.

Anne Trebilcock holds a Bachelor's degree in history from Wellesley College (highest honors) and a Juris Doctor degree from Berkeley Law, University of California, where she was an associate editor of the California Law Review.

She is a member of the State Bar of Michigan, the American Society of International Law, the European Society of International Law, the International Labour and Employment Relations

Association, the International Society for Labour and Social Security Law and the Society of International Economic Law.
