

MR. ANTONY ANGHIE

Samuel D. Thurman Professor of Law

S.J. Quinney College of Law, University of Utah

Professor Anghie received a B.A. and an LL.B. from Monash University in Melbourne, Australia. He earned an S.J.D. from Harvard Law School, where he also served as a MacArthur Scholar at the Harvard Center for International Affairs and a Senior Fellow in the Graduate Program at the law school. In the summer of 1994, he completed an internship with the International Monetary Fund in Washington, D.C. He also practiced law in Melbourne, Australia.

Professor Anghie joined the faculty at the University of Utah S.J. Quinney College of Law faculty in 1995. He served as Faculty Director of the L.L.M. program from 1995 to 2001; he also served on the University President's Task Force on Internationalization and on various other committees examining issues of internationalization at the university level. He frequently teaches courses at other universities, including the University of Melbourne, Cornell Law School, American University Cairo, the University of Auckland, the University of Tokyo, and the Law College in Sri Lanka.

Professor Anghie's research interests include public and private international law; human rights; globalization, development issues, and international law; terrorism and the use of force; international business transactions and international economic law; colonialism and the history of public international law; and third world approaches to international law

Professor Anghie teaches Contracts, International Law, International Business Transactions, and International Environmental Law. In 2005 he was awarded the Outstanding Teacher of the Year Award.