

“THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE AS PRINCIPAL JUDICIAL ORGAN OF THE UNITED NATIONS”

OUTLINE

I INTRODUCTION

II ORIGINS OF THE ORGANIC CONNECTION BETWEEN THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE AND THE UNITED NATIONS

III THE ICJ AS AN ORGAN OF THE UNITED NATIONS

- A. The Statute as an Integral Part of the Charter
- B. Membership Links
- C. Financial Links

IV RELATIONS OF THE ICJ WITH OTHER ORGANS

A. The ICJ as Principal Organ

- 1) The absence of a hierarchy between the ICJ and other principal organs: the principle of equality
- 2) The interdependence of the ICJ and other principal organs: the principle of functional cooperation
- 3) The contribution of the Court to the development of the institutional law of the United Nations

B. The ICJ as Judicial Organ

- 1) The independence of the ICJ and its inherent judicial limitations
- 2) The concept of functional parallelism
- 3) The ICJ and the question of judicial review

C. The ICJ as Principal Judicial Organ

- 1) The ICJ as a non-exclusive judicial organ
- 2) The lack of a hierarchy between the ICJ and the subsidiary judicial organs (ICTY, ICTR)

V. THE ICJ AS WORLD COURT

A. The Non-availability of the ICJ’s Contentious Jurisdiction to the United Nations and its Organs

B. The ICJ as a “Principal” as opposed to an “Exclusive” International Tribunal

C. The ICJ’s Participation in the Activities of the United Nations under its Contentious Jurisdiction