

DUNCAN B. HOLLIS

*Laura H. Carnell Professor of Law
Temple Law School*

Duncan B. Hollis is Laura H. Carnell Professor of Law at Temple University's Beasley School of Law and also co-directs the University's Institute for Law, Innovation & Technology. His scholarship engages with issues of international law, interpretation, and cybersecurity, with a particular emphasis on treaties, norms, and other forms of international regulation. He is currently a non-resident Scholar at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and an elected member of the American Law Institute, where he served as an Adviser on its project to draft a Fourth Restatement on the Foreign Relations Law of the United States. He is, together with Professor Dapo Akande, a co-convenor of the Oxford Process on International Law Protections in Cyberspace. In 2016, he was elected by the General Assembly of the Organization of the American States to a four-year term on the OAS's Inter-American Juridical Committee. There, he served as the Rapporteur on a project that resulted in the Inter-American Juridical Committee Guidelines on Binding and Non-Binding Agreements (with Commentary) as well as a separate project on improving the transparency of State views on international law's application to cyberspace.

Professor Hollis's books include The Oxford Guide to Treaties (OUP, 2nd ed., 2020), the first edition of which was awarded the 2013 American Society of International Law Certificate of Merit for high technical craftsmanship and utility to practicing lawyers; International Law (with Allen Weiner), the 7th edition of one of the leading textbooks; and (with Jens Ohlin) Defending Democracies: Combatting Foreign Election Interference in a Digital Age (OUP, 2020). His more than 30 articles and book chapters have appeared in various publications, including the American Journal of International Law, Texas Law Review, Southern California Law Review, Harvard Journal of International Law, and Virginia Journal of International Law.

Professor Hollis has held visiting academic appointments at Melbourne Law School, LUISS Università Guido Carli, and the University of Pennsylvania's Perry World House. From 1996-2004, he served as an attorney-adviser at the U.S. Department of State's Office of the Legal Adviser, and he currently serves as a member of the Department's Advisory Committee on International Law. He consults regularly for various governments and international organizations on issues of public international law and regularly works with the Microsoft Corporation on its digital peace agenda.