Lecture II

Law and Power in Global Society

January 9th, 2009

ONUMA Yasuaki
Professor of the University of Tokyo
Table of Contents

Introduction

1. I The Complexity of Law and Power in Global Society
   1. A Prevalent Image on Law and Power: International Law vs. the Power of States
   2. The Power that Creates, Sustains and Realizes International Law
Table of Contents

II Ideational Power and International Law

1 International Law as a Modern Western Construct
2 In Quest of More Legitimate Perspectives in the Global Discursive Space
Introduction

• The Prevalent Perception of Law vs. Power

• Tensions between the Transnationalization of Economics and Information and the Sovereign States System

• Tensions between the Global Pursuit for Human Dignity and the Sense of Humiliation and Victimization Shared by People in the Non-Western World
Introduction

- continued -

• Tensions between the Increasing Economic Power Held by Asian Nations and the Ideational Power Held by Western Nations

The New York Times

• How Will Law and Power Change in a Global Society?
• And How Should They Change?
I The Complexity of Law and Power in a Global Society

1 A Prevalent Image on Law and Power: International Law vs. the Power of States
   • Complex Relations between Law and Power
   • International Law as One of Many Useful Institutions Managing Affairs in a Global Society under the Sovereign States System
The Complexity of Law and Power in a Global Society

- continued -

1 A Prevalent Image on Law and Power: International Law vs. the Power of States

- continued -

- The Necessity of Law to Legitimize the Hegemony of Major Powers in International Society

- International Law as a Tool to Protect the Interest of Smaller Nations
The Complexity of Law and Power in a Global Society

- continued -

2. The Power That Creates, Sustains and Realizes International Law
   • “Might Makes Right?”: The Creation of Bilateral Treaties
   • The Role of the Power of the Majority in the Creation of Multilateral Treaties
Chapter 2: The Power That Creates, Sustains and Realizes International Law

- The Enforcement Mechanisms of International Law and Domestic Law
- Lack of Adjudicative Enforcement Mechanisms in International Society
- Collective Security System as an Alternate Enforcement Mechanism?
Chapter 2: The Power That Creates, Sustains and Realizes International Law

- The Power of the US as an Alternate Means to Enforce International Law?
- The Balance of Power as a Prerequisite for the Legitimate Realization of International Law?
II Ideational Power and International Law

1 International Law as a Modern Western Construct

• The Power of Ideas
• The Power of the Idea of Human Rights
• The Power to Make Ideas Become Known, Disseminated and Shared
• A Columnist of the NY Times vs. an Unknown International Lawyer in a Small Country
II Ideational Power and International Law

1 International Law as a Modern Western Construct

- So-called “Realism” in International Relations Theory and the Reality of Global Legalism
- Various Societal Functions of International Law
2 In Quest of More Legitimate Perspectives in the Global Discursive Space

- International Law as Constructing Thoughts and Behaviors of Humanity
- Major Notions and Cognitive Frameworks of International Law as Constructs by Western Intellectuals
II Ideational Power and International Law

2 In Quest of More Legitimate Perspectives in the Global Discursive Space

- continued -

- continued –

• The Dangerous Gap between the Emerging Realities and the Cognitive Frameworks
II Ideational Power and International Law

- continued -

2 In Quest of More Legitimate Perspectives in the Global Discursive Space  - continued -

• The Need for Changing Perspectives for Responding to the Multi-polarization of the Globe

• Establishment of the European Society of International Law and the Asian Society of International Law in the Early 21st Century
Everything can be doubted.

René Descartes

To doubt is a virtue.

KAIHO Seiryo

From whose perspective is the “Far East” far east?

If there is a “Far East”, where is the “Far West”?