

MS. JENNIFER TRAHAN

*Clinical Professor
Center for Global Affairs
New York University*

Jennifer Trahan is Clinical Professor at NYU's Center for Global Affairs and Director of their Concentration in International Law and Human Rights. She teaches: International Law; Human Rights in Theory & Practice; International Justice; Transitional Justice; U.S. Use of Force & the “Global War on Terror”; and a field intensive on “War Crimes Prosecutions in the former Yugoslavia” that travels to The Hague, Bosnia and Serbia; as well as a field intensive that travels to Rwanda. She is a prolific scholar, having published two digests on the case law of the ad hoc tribunals, as well as scores of law review articles and book chapters, including on the International Criminal Court’s crime of aggression. Her book, "Legal Limits to Security Council Veto Power in the Face of Atrocity Crimes," was published by Cambridge University Press in 2020, and is the winner of the “2020 ABILA Book of the Year Award” by the American Branch of the International Law Association. She also serves as one of the US representatives to the Use of Force Committee of the International Law Association and holds various positions with the American Branch of the International Law Association. In addition, she has served as an amicus curiae to the International Criminal Court on the appeal of the situation regarding Afghanistan, and served as an expert on the Council of Advisers on the Application of the Rome Statute to Cyberwarfare.